Description:

From School Library Journal Grade 4-8?This autobiography doesn't reveal deep, dark secrets but does convey the very real horrors of a killing six-day schedule (rising early in the morning to wedge in practice time before school) and the geographic logistics demanding difficult family decisions (she and her mother moved to Detroit for her training, while her father remained in Texas). Mention is made of non-skating friends, as well as a few famous acquaintances (gymnast Dominique Moceanu and television actress Lacey Chabert). Readers will most remember the constant daily grind, the ever-looming competitions, and the non-skating realities of preparation?costuming, choreography, hair, makeup, and music. Fans will enjoy Lipinski's list of "My Favorites Things" and the radiant, full-color photos. A helpful guide to scoring and a glossary of skating terms is included.?Marilyn Payne

From Gr. 4<sup>-6</sup>. Fifteen-year-old ice skater Tara Lipinski recounts her life story from her early years in Sewall, New Jersey, where she began roller-skating at the age of three, through her 1997 triumphs as both U.S. and world women's figure skating champion. She describes the long hours of practice and private tutoring sessions that fill her days, and though she spends much of her time training away from home, she seems upbeat about her life, almost unaware that she might be missing out on anything else. So far, Lipinski appears immune to adversity (whether financial, mental, or physical), and she emerges as a hardworking, positive young woman likely to inspire others to follow in her footsteps. For a look at the life of another young figure skating champion, see James' Michelle Kwan: Heart of a Champion. Kay Weisman
